GRIM AND THE DEMOCRATS.

His Nomination for Superior Judge a Testimonial to Democratic Unity.

In the midst of a non-partisan struggle that presents more or less novelty to the average voter, it is well for Democrats to keep in mind that Webster Grim is a member of their party. He was nominated for superior judge by a splendid vote, a tribute to Democratic unity as well as a testimonial to a worthy and consistent advocate of party principles. In view of conditions in Pennsylvania it is possible to elect Mr. Grim, in fact, it is probable, providing Democratic voters give him their full support. This office ought to go to the party, and it is believed that a great many Republicans, dissatisfied with their own party, will vote for him.

Having canvassed the state for governor Mr. Grim is not unknown to the people. He can, therefore, count with confidence on obtaining that to which he is entitled—the hearty support of his party. As the party is preparing itself for a campaign next year that promises to give it a United States senator and possibly the governor, it should take advantage of the situation this year to lay the foundation in the shape of a solid vote for its candidate for the superior judgeship, so let every Democrat remember that Webster Grim represents the party on the ticket, and that every vote cast for him will contribute a measure of influence having a direct bearing on the campaign next year. There is no reason why a Democrat should misunderstand the situation.

The Democrats of Centre county will make no mistake in this matter, and that there will be unity of action on their part. The point for them to keep in mind is that every vote cast for Webster Grim will be a vote for the Democratic party, for its building up and aid to its success next year.

Corporations and Bond Issue.

Dr. Ed. L. Miller of Johnstown forwarded to this office a clipping from a newspaper, the substance of which is that the "corporations will pay for the road bonds," and asks that it be printed. The speakers at the good roads meeting in Bellefonte used the same argument, claiming that the funds for road purposes, or rather the interest on the bonds, the sums required for the sinking fund, would be paid by corporations, and that real estate would pay nothing for road purposes.

The statements have just enough truth in them to deceive many who hear them. It is true that real estate is not taxed for state purpose. That does not change the situation. It is just as much loss to the tax-payers to squander funds gathered in the form of taxes from corporations as from real estate. Bonding the state is not necessary, no matter who pays the bills.

If the advocates mean to make corporations pay the expenses of road building and maintaining, why should the state be bonded to raise the funds? Why not tax corporations the same as real estate. That would give all the moneys, and more, needed.

This paper is for good roads, and it believes corporations ought to pay largely—much more than they do now—toward the building of them, but issuing bonds will not add a penny to the sum corporations will pay if no bonds are issued.

This corporation tax story is the same that was told when the capitol steal was going on. We were told it wasn't our money that was stolen, but the courts said it was.

Reservations for Children.

Forester Jesse M. Houtz, located on the Nittany Mountain reservation, gave the Reporter for publication the actions of the State Forestry Reservation Commission, as follows:

Be it resolved that the State Forestry Reservation Commission grant the children of Pennsylvania free use of the State Forests as recreation ground, subject to the few reasonable and necessary rules for the protection of the land itself, and urges upon them the use of this land for all proper purposes, particularly for mineral and plant study, the collecting of wild flowers, the study of bird and animal life, the gathering of chestnuts and other wild nuts and fruits, and the enjoyment of such pleasures as are incident to the life of a child in nature's great out-of-doors.

Resolved, further, that all forest officers afford every reasonable facility in their power to the children in their respective neighborhood, for the enjoyment of the privileges herein conferred, and of which the children are freely invited to avail themselves.

Sunday, Sunday night and Monday the rainfall summed up a total of 1.80 inches. The fall was gradual, and did no harm to fields or roads.

J. D. MURRAY DEAD.

Centre Hall's Oldest Resident and Oldest Citizen in Point of Residence Passed Away Thursday Evening.

In the death of Jared Darius Murray, on Thursday evening of last week, Centre Hall oldest resident and citizen in point of residence passed away.

Interment was made on Saturday afternoon in the local cemetery, the services having been held at the home of the deceased and were conducted by Rev. R. R. Jones, pastor of the Reformed church, of which Mr. Murray was a member for many years, and gave it during those years a good financial support, and regularly attended all services.

The Murray family is associated with the early history of Penns Valley. During the first or second year of the past century, Levi Murray came from Berks to Union county, and built a tannery along Penns Creek. In a very short time the floods carried away his improvements. Disheartened to some extent, the tanner started out to find a place suited to his business that, although located along a stream, would not be wiped out by a flood. He crossed Nittany Mountain, and finding a quiet brook just below the top of the mountain, decided that that place would be free from the perils of a flood. The tannery was built in the flat near the site of the farm house on the Nittany Mountain farm, and the little pond there now was built by him. On retiring from business, the elder Murray moved to Upper Brush Valley, north of the Murray school house, the school district taking his name.

George Murray was a son of Levi. When in his teens George Murray enlisted in the 1812 war, and on returning to Centre county at the close of the war, located on the Murray farm, west of Linden Hall. His wife was Nancy McNabb, and the subject of this sketch was a son of this couple, and was born on the homestead June 12, 1826.

It was in 1853, when Centre Hall was but a cross roads town that Mr. Murray came here. He began work in the Harpster wagon-maker shop, on the lot adjoining the home where he died. A little later—October 12, 1854—he married Miss Mary Ann Hoffer. About this time he purchased two lots from his bride's father, Christopher Hoffer, and erected on them a dwelling house and wagon-maker and blacksmith shop. This is the property now occupied by E. S. Ripka and the Goodhart furniture store. In this, like all other undertakings, Mr. Murray proved successful and built up a large trade. On selling his business to his brother, Levi Murray, Mr. Murray became general agent for the Excelsior reaper company, and in that capacity traveled over the eastern, southern and middle western states. In 1878 he purchased the Murray store from the late Rev. J. K. Miller, disposing of all merchandise other than drugs, he devoted his entire attention to this business. Here again Mr. Murray was successful as a druggist, built up a fine trade and a good name.

Mr. Murray was a great reader and student. He acquainted himself with all questions of the day. Politically he was a Democrat, and believed in its principles, and always exercised the privilege of a citizen to cast a ballot. He held various borough offices, but never sought further honors. He was the first school director to advocate teaching the higher branches during school hours in the local public school, and his judgement was accepted as good and his plan adopted. He was a public spirited man, and always ready to further the interests of the community by contribution of funds and personal aid.

Mr. Murray was aged eighty-seven years, four months, four days. His wife died after they had lived happily together for more than fifty years. There survive a daughter, Agnes Magdaline, wife of Dr. H. F. Bitner, also four grandchildren, Harry, Pittsburg; Lawrence, Alaska; Ralph, a senior in Pennsylvania State College, and Lynn, at home. Two sisters and two brothers also survive, namely: Mrs. Eliza Houser, aged ninety-three years, Houserville; Elmira wife of Thompson Smith, Huntingdon; John E. Murray, Lemont, and William Abner Murray, Esq., Boalsburg.

The Gregg Farm Sold.

The farm known as the "upper" Gregg farm was sold on Saturday to Clyde E. Dutrow, east of Centre Hall, by James L. P. Gregg, representing the owners, the Misses Gregg of Millesburg. The price paid was $4500 cash. The place contains about one hundred and sixty acres, about one hundred and forty of which are clear. The farm lies west of Centre Hall. Mr. Dutrow's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Walker, will move onto the place in the spring.

A bit more rain on Friday night.

THE BOND ISSUE QUESTION.

By Bonding Corporations See a Way of Escaping Tax, for Road Purposes—The Pay as You Go Plan Would Mean Additional Tax for Corporations.

The time has long gone by when any argument in favor of good roads in Pennsylvania was needed. Everybody wants good roads. There is a demand for them from the people of all classes in every part of the State.

The question that the people have now to discuss and decide is not whether or not good roads are wanted, but how are we to get them. The Republicans in Pennsylvania, taking advantage of this universal desire for good roads, offer as a solution of the problem a constitutional amendment authorizing the creation of a bonded debt for $50,000,000.

Considered solely from an economic standpoint, to make such a debt would be to adopt a policy that is absolutely wrong.

The State Highway Department since it was established ten years ago has never shown that it is capable of building roads that will last, roads that can be fairly called permanent improvements such as only would justify an issue of bonds to construct them. Nothing could excuse us for bonding ourselves and our posterity for a mere temporary expedient like the State roads that have been and are now being constructed. No individual partnership or corporation would think of pursuing such false business methods. Why should the people of the State do it?

The methods of the State Highway Department are so loose and unscientific, its knowledge of road building so imperfect and its methods so haphazard that it is impossible to ascertain from the department or from the Auditor General what has been the average cost of the roads thus far built or how much money in the aggregate has been expended upon them.

From the Auditor General's report it is known that since he came into office, State Highway Commissioner Bigelow has had at his disposal more than $12,800,000, or more than one-fourth of the money that would be realized from a $50,000,000 bond issue; that none of these roads are of a character that they can be called permanent improvements; though some of them cost as high as $29,000 a mile. We are told that for 190 miles of them, the contractors were paid an average of $13,341.18 per mile, but that does not include the "extras" allowed contractors nor the cost of engineering, supervision and other work done by the Highway Department.

But even if the highway department were building roads that would be permanent, a bond issue to carry on the work would be unnecessary and improper. It is well known that with proper management of the State finances $5,000,000 or more a year can be taken from current revenues for the construction of new roads which is as much as can be economically expended.

The automobile license fees amounting to a million dollars a year will go a long way towards taking care of the maintenance of State roads. If $50,000,000 loan were made it would require $3,000,000 a year to provide for the interest and sinking fund on it. This could be much better used for road building.

It is not to be forgotten that during his last year in office Auditor General Sisson increased the State revenues a couple of million dollars by readjusting the assessments on some of the great public service corporations and requiring them to pay the amounts justly due from them to the State. This he accomplished with an inadequate force of assistants and investigators. Since then the department has been reorganized and the force enlarged and there is no doubt that with the additional help that has been provided, other readjustments of corporation taxes can be made so that the increase in State revenues from them will amount to much more than Mr. Sisson affected.

Here can probably be found the reason why the public service corporations of the State are so anxious for a bond issue. They see a way to escape paying their fair share of taxes because of the tremendous demand for good roads throughout the State.

The forgoing is a brief outline of the economic reasons why the people should defeat the constitutional amendment to authorize this great debt to build roads which would be completely worn out and gone before the last of the debt was paid.

But there are political as well as economic reasons why the proposed constitutional amendment be voted down. The whole scheme is involved in politics. The State Highway Department has been organized as a political machine, it is contended. Superintendents, inspectors and other subordinates throughout the State, confessedly have been appointed because they were servants of the present Republican machine and could be depended upon to do the bidding of the machine. Their qualifications as road builders, in their appointment was subordinated to their success as political manipulators and vote getters. The whole department from top to bottom has been organized and is run to build up and strengthen a selfish, corrupt and corrupting machine that for years has robbed and oppressed the people under the pretense of serving them

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

Session will Open Monday, November 10 and Continue Four Days.

Superintendent David O. Etters forwarded the Reporter information relative to the Centre County Teachers' Institute too late for last week's issue, but it is printed in this issue. The instructors and evening attractions, judging from the literature at hand, are the equal of those of previous years, and some may be better.

The instructors and speaker who will appear before the convention include the following:

Supt. Jas. G. Pentz, State High school inspector, Harrisburg.

Dr. Arthur Holmes, dean of the Colleges, State College.

Dr. Chas. C. Ellis, dean of Juniata College, Huntingdon.

Dr. Francis H. Green, professor of English, State Normal school, West Chester.

Prof. Thos. I. Mairs, chief of the Department of Agricultural Education, State College.

Prof. C. C. Robinson, director of music, State College, will have charge of the music; and Prof. J. S. F. Ruthrauff, Philipsburg, will be pianist.

The evening numbers will be as follows:

Monday, November 10th, The Ernest Gamble Concert company.

Tuesday, November 11th, Lecture, "The University of Hard Knocks," Ralph Parlette.

Wednesday, November 12th, Concert, "The Penn State Quartette."

Thursday, November 13th, Lecture, "The High Cost of Living, and How to Reduce It," Dr. Madison C. Peters.

Course tickets, with reserved seat, $2.00; single admission with reserved seat, 50 cents; general admission, 35 cents.

Creamery Assured.

It is almost certain that the members of Progress Grange will put into operation the idle creamery plant at Centre Hall. With little or no effort almost $500 has been raised by subscription. To this is added the $500 guaranteed by the Centre County Pomona Grange, giving a total working fund of $1000. Further solicitations for subscriptions will be made during the next week.

The Pink Label.

The Pink Label appears this week. This indicates that credit has been given on the label on your paper if you paid subscription between the dates of August 26th and October 20th. The pink label appears on all papers, but it is of particular interest only to those who paid subscription recently. Look the label over, and if an error in credit has been made report at once.

Arkansas will be Dry.

By sustaining the validity of a law by the last legislature, the Arkansas supreme court placed in the hands of the "drys" a weapon by which they expect to wipe out practically every saloon in the state.

The law provides that even after a community has voted "wet" a petition bearing the signatures of the majority of the white adults must be presented to the county judge before he can grant any liquor licenses. The negro voter, who has been a factor in voting many communities wet, is excluded from sanctioning the granting of licenses, by provision of an emergency clause attached to the bill, declaring his exclusion from the licensing petition to be imperative for the immediate preservation of peace, health and public safety."

DEATHS

Joliet (Illinois) Press.

Mrs. Philip Mersinger, one of Joliet's best known women, died Sunday morning at 2 o'clock at St. Joseph's hospital after a short illness, pneumonia being the cause of her death. Although in poor health for the past year, Mrs. Mersinger's death was a shock to her many friends, as few knew of her sudden illness.

Sarah E. McCormick was the daughter of William and Margaret McCormick and was born at Potters Mills, Centre county, Pennsylvania, where her girlhood days were passed and her marriage to Philip Mersinger, who died December 1906, was celebrated.

Mr. and Mrs. Mersinger came to Joliet in 1878, when the city had but 11,000 population.

Mrs. Mersinger was prominent in all charitable works, for many years she was a member of the advisory board of Silver Cross hospital, and the workings of the hospital were always of deep interest to her, for she was one of the pioneers in the movement establishing it.

Another organization of which Mrs. Mersinger was one of the organizers was the Business Woman's club and ever since its earliest days to the time of her death, the club work laid near to her heart and she gave much assistance. She was also charter member of Bethany Shrine, White Shrine of Jerusalem and of Marguerite Chapter, O. E. S. Mrs. Mersinger was the first Shriner in Joliet, being a member of the Chicago organization before the local shrine was organized. Mrs. Mersinger was the fourth past matron of Marguerite Chapter. She was also past grand Esther. In both orders she was an earnest worker and both societies as well as the members of the Business Woman's club will attend the funeral in a body.

As a cat fancier Mrs. Mersinger was known throughout the state and was a member of the Chicago Cat Club and one of the organizers of the Joliet Cat club. Many fine awards were won by her cats, for they were never exhibited at any club without carrying off a trophy. At the time of her death she possessed a number of very valuable cats.

The deceased is survived by one brother, Thomas McCormick of Chicago, who was with her at the end, two nieces, Mrs. Candas Barcus and Miss Bertha McCormick of Rossville, Illinois, and two nephews, Andrew McCormick of Alabama, and Robert McCormick of Thoroughfare, New Jersey; Leonard Selzer of Richards street is a nephew of Mr. Mersinger and Dr. S. M. Kennelly a cousin of the deceased.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the undertaking parlors of George N. Chamberlin & Son to the Ottawa Street M. E. church at 2:30. Rev. George McAdam will officiate.

Beside the brother named by the Joliet paper there survive these other brothers, namely; Samuel, Los Angeles, California; James, Warren, Ohio; Vance, address unknown; Maggie, also in west.

We have a fine climate here, and have not yet had a killing frost this fall. Prune picking has just been finished. The crop is the largest in years. All other fruit is plentiful.

There are many new people coming here, most of whom are attracted by the fine climate.

Putting the idle creamery plant into operation will be beneficial not only to the farmers in this community, but to consumers of butter. It will also give employment to several men; it will add to shipping; be a a consumer of fuel, and of general benefit to the community.

Constable Charles D. Frazier, who finds ample time outside of office hours to conduct the Runkle farm at Stone Mill, owned by the Harters, had a fine crop of clover seed, the yield being sixty-one bushels. This is probably he largest yield of seed produced this year from any one farm in this locality.

Squire Clayton Wagner has learned that to improve and make a farm more productive means expense in another direction. The barn facilities on his farm became inadequate as the soil began improving, and this induced him to build a large hay barn. Mr. Wagner thinks forced expenditures of this sort are a pleasure.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Smetzler, the latter part of last week, started on a trip through Ohio. Most of the time will be spent with the former's brother, David G. Smetzler, at Bellevue, Ohio. Mr. Smetzler is on the Pennsy's retired list of employes, which carries with it not only a monthly pay envelope but trip passes as well.

The young men who disturbed the play given by the State College High School, on Saturday night, got into easy hands, and their apologies were accepted as a guarantee for their future good behavior. The offenders were not boys, but young men—some of them married—holding places of trust where good conduct is a requirement. They walked close to the brink.

It appears every community has a sneak thief to support. Woodward has a character of this kind, and the other Sunday he helped himself liberally from the home of Mrs. Mary Motz. He practiced his profession to the extent of securing $50 in cash and and a pension check belonging to George Miller, an aged veteran. The theft was committed while the Motz family were at church.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McCormick of Columbia, South Carolina, landed in Centre Hall last Wednesday evening and remained until Sunday. They had been on an extended trip through the middle north, and visited Chicago, Milwaukee, Rochester and various other cities. They attended the national convention of undertakers in Chicago, and a convention of the same character in Milwaukee. Mr. Mc Cormick is an enthusiastic southerner, and states that conditions in all lines are improving. A fourteen-cent cotton crop was unheard of until this fall. The crop is short, but the advance in price from ten to fourteen cents is a larger increase than the shortage in the crop represents.

Mention has been made on previous occasions of the purchase of the Hosterman farm at Tusseyville by John F. Hosterman of Penn Hall, which was true, but since he and his brother, Prof. William P. Hosterman, made an exchange of farms, and now the former owns the farm on which he lives, at Penn Hall, and Prof. Hosterman became the owner of the Hosterman farm at Tusseyville. A. F. Heckman, a brother-in-law, who for a number of years lived on the Tusseyville farm in question, will move to Penn Hall and will live in the parental homestead. This change does not interfere with the plan announced that Arthur L. Slutterbeck will succeed Mr. Heckman as tenant there.

SULZER DEPOSED GLYNN GOVERNOR

Impeachment Tribunal Votes 43 to 12 for Removal.

TESTIMONY 700,000 WORDS.

Glynn Becomes State's Executive And Wagner Lieutenant Governor By Action—Decision Is Given By Judge Cullen.

Albany, N. Y.—William Sulzer no longer is Governor of the State of New York.

A few minutes before noon the High Court of Impeachment by a vote of 43 to 12, removed him from office.

Senator Wende and Judge Cullen excused themselves from voting.

The proposition of disqualifying Sulzer from ever again holding a place of honor or trust in the State was voted down unanimously with the exception that Judge Cullen again excused himself from recording his vote.

The Governor received the news of his removal in silence at the executive mansion, where he had waited to hear the result. He said he might make a statement later.

Four Articles Voted Out.

Prior to the vote on his disqualification and removal, the last four articles of the impeachment charges were unanimously voted out.

Court was in session little more than one hour. It was officially adjourned a minute after 12 o'clock.

Martin H. Glynn of Albany, the acting Governor, became Governor. Robert F. Wagner, of New York, majority leader of the Senate, became Lieutenant Governor.

No official notice of removal was given Sulzer. A record of the decision of the court was filed with the Secretary of State, thus complying with all the legal requirements to remove the Governor.

How Vote Was Recorded.

The articles voted out charged that Sulzer committed larceny in speculating with funds contributed for his campaign; that he bartered his political influence; that he dissuaded Frederick L. Colwell from testifying against him before the Frawley Investigating Committee, and that he used his official position to influence the price of stocks in which he was interested.

The articles on which he was found guilty charged that Sulzer filed with the Secretary of State a false statement of his receipts and other monetary transactions involved in his Gubernatorial campaign; that he committed perjury in his statement to the Secretary of State relative to receipts and expenditures, and that he suppressed evidence by means of threats to keep witnesses from testifying before the Legislative committee.

He Had Few Friends.

Those who voted against the removal of the Governor were:

Senators McKnight, O'Keefe, Peckham, Seeley and Wheeler, Democrats; Emerson, Heacock, Stivers, Thomas and Whitney, Republicans; Durhamel, Independence League and Democrat; Palmer, Republican and Progressive.

At their own request Presiding Judge Cullen and Senator Wende were excused from voting. Every other Judge of the Court of Appeals voted for removal.

Friends who were with Sulzer when he received the news of the verdict said that he appeared to be relieved that the suspense was over. Mrs. Sulzer, who has been hysterical at times in the last week, was also said to have brightened perceptibly.

Useless To Go To Court.

Sulzer is of the opinion that an attempt to take the case to the United States Supreme Court would be of little use and it is doubtful if such procedure is followed. Attorney Louis Marshall however was reported to be considering such an appeal more for to establish the constitutional status of the case than in the hope of restoring Sulzer to power.

Court's Announcement.

Presiding Judge Cullen's formal announcement of the Governor's removal in court was as follows:

"The respondent William Sulzer, having been convicted by the vote of more than two-thirds of the members of this Court on the first, second and fourth articles of impeachment, and the Court having resolved that for the offenses of which he has been convicted the respondent be removed from office, it is the judgment of the Court, and it is now the duty of the president to declare that for those offenses the said William Sulzer, Governor of the State, be and he is herby removed from his office as Governor."

28 KILLED WHEN BALLOON EXPLODES

Awful Tragedy Over Johannisthal Field—Disaster Occurred On Trial Trip With Officials On Board.

Berlin.—The newest and largest of the Zeppelin war airships, the L-II., was destroyed in midair by an explosion.

All except one of the 27 military men on board, including the entire admiralty trial board, were killed.

The Zeppelin disaster occurred just above the main street of the city of Johannisthal while the big dirigible, 500 feet long, was making a trial trip preliminary to its acceptance as flagship of the new German aerial navy.

The shattered hulk of the airship, a mass of blazing canvas and crumpled aluminum, dropped 900 feet into the public highway.

Hundreds of persons, who had been watching the flight from parks and housetops, rushed to the scene. There was nothing to be done except take out the dead bodies of the victims from the mass of twisted wreckage.

Only Survivor Begs For Death.

Lieutenant Baron von Bleul of the Queen Augusta Grenadier Guards, who was making the trip as a guest, was the only survivor of the wreck. He was badly injured and his condition is critical and he begged to be killed.

Many of the bodies were so burned and mangled as to be unrecognizable.

LADY COOK'S DRASTIC PLAN.

Would Brand Men Unfit To Marry With Hot Iron.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Lady Cook, of London, who was formerly Miss Tennessee Claflin, of New York, said that men unfit for marriage should be branded with a hot iron, like Cain. "My method may sound terrible, but it is not one-millionth part as cruel as to allow an infected man to marry a good, pure woman and bring deformed children into the world."

MAY BE PRAIRIE MURDERER.

Negro Arrested In South Suspect In Leegson Case.

Atlanta, Ga.—After examining the record of John Henry, a negro arrested here last Wednesday on charges of burglary and assault, local police announced their belief that he is the murderer of Miss Ida Leegson, the art student who was lured to her death October 4, at Chicago.

TELEGRAPH TICKS

Chicago. "What would Bryan say," exclaimed Judge Scully when John Nicholson testified he got drunk on too much grape juice.

Winslow, N. J.—A wedding ring lost 37 years ago, was found buried six inches under ground here. Its owner, Henry Kramer, had accused a farmhand of stealing it.

Canaan, Ct.—"We should worry," was the text of the talk at the annual banquet of the Bald Head Club of America held here. The affair is described as one of the "finest array of bald heads that ever draped a banquet."

Montclair, N. J.—David Paine, Democratic candidate for town council, is making a campaign against poison ivy. Paine declares he is in favor of the removal of all such noxious weeds from the highways of Montclair, as they constitute a menace to children and grownups alike.

New York.—Miss Alice Bradley, aged 20, described as "athletic," punched a street car conductor because he refused to pick up a nickel she had dropped on the car floor. She was fined $10.

New York.—Asserting that her husband prevents her from sleeping at night by reading in bed until daylight, Mrs. John W. Hutchinson has asked the Fusion Speakers' Bureau to give him a job as speaker for the Fusion cause. She says he won't work, although he is highly educated.

NOW THROUGH WITH HUERTA

Wilson Not to Have Any Further Dealings With Him.

MAY AID CONSTITUTIONALISTS

Would Adopt Drastic Measures, But Doesn't Want To Risk Endangering Other Program, Is Report.

Washington.—President Wilson indicated to those who discussed the Mexican situation with him that he was irrevocably determined to deal no longer with the Huerta regime, but that further steps toward bringing peace to Mexico were being considered. No move is expected, however, until after October 26, the date set for the Mexican election.

Just what the Washington Government will do is yet a matter of speculation among the high officials, but the trend of events, they say, is unmistakably toward conducting negotiations in some form or another with the Constitutionalists.

The policy of the United States has been to make a complete record of having attempted to handle the problem by peaceful means. Up to the present time parleys have been carried on with the Huerta authorities, who have rejected the good offices of the United States. Strong pressure now is being brought to bear upon the President and Secretary Bryan to give the Constitutionalists an opportunity to compose the situation through the support of this country.

May Support Constitutionalists.

Reports that the President was preparing to recognize the beligerancy of the Constitutionalists are based chiefly upon the friendly disposition toward them that has arisen among Administration officials since Huerta's proclamation of dictatorship. The suggestion has been carried to President Wilson by those upon whose judgment he and Secretary Bryan have in the past been guided to some extent, and while the attitude is one of waiting until October 26 arrives, it appears that some move indicating support for the Constitutionalists was not at all improbable.

Such action might not be formal recognition, which would present a curious tangle in the technicalities of international law, but it is pointed out by those who are urging informal dealings with the Constitutionalists that in reality Governor Carranza was legally elected chief executive of the State of Coahuila, and that he and Governor Maytorena, of Sonora justify their armed resistence of Huerta as a measure of defense against those who took possession of the Federal Government machinery in the Mexican capital by arbitrarily overthrowing Madero.

"DRY" BILLS THROUGH SENATE.

Law Enforcement Measures Now Go To Tennessee House.

Nashville, Tenn.—Two of the so-called law enforcement bills were passed by the upper house of the Tennesse Legislature with neglible opposition and now go to the House. One of these two measures prohibits intra-State shipment of liquor and charges the officers of a county in which such shipments may be received with enforcing the law, and the other makes saloons, gambling or disorderly houses nuisances, to be abated upon application of 10 or more citizens.

FIRE IN MAHANOY CITY.

Blaze Causes $100,000 Damages In Pennsylvania Town.

Mahanoy, Pa. — Seven business places in the heart of the city, including the Kaier Opera House, were destroyed by fire. For a time it was feared that several blocks would be burned, as a strong wind was blowing and the flames were beyond control, while the buildings in the path of the fire were not of fireproof construction, except one, the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron office building

THE HERO OF THE VOLTURNO

Fire Now Said To Have Been Due To The Explosion Of Chemical In The Cargo.

New York.—New York took in and sheltered the first survivors of the steamship Volturno to arrive in this country, 105 in number, brought into port by the Grosser Kurfuerst, the North German Lloyd liner that sent the first rescue boat careening across the heavy seas that made so difficult the task of removing passengers and crew from the burning ship.

The wireless had brought ashore graphic accounts of last week's sea tragedy; and from the lips of some of the Volturno's saved there came descriptions which, containing the intimate details for which the world had waited, accentuated the heroic conduct of the Volturno's captain, officers and of men who manned the lifeboats that put forth from other ships.

The explosion of a drum containing chemicals was the cause of the fire, according to the story told by Waldron Disselman, third officer of the Volturno. Disselman gave a thrilling narrative of the long hours spent on his fire-ridden ship, fighting the flames, sustaining the crippled wireless plant, lowering lifeboats, quieting the panic-stricken, steering the vessel to hand to keep her from drifting—fighting the battle unaided because the waves were running too high for small craft from other ships to accomplish the journey to the Volturno's side. More than 80 passengers were burned to death when they were cut off by flames, Disselman reported.

WILL PROBE ATLANTA PRISON.

Congressman Howard Actuated By Hawthorne Charges.

Atlanta, Ga.—Representative William Schley Howard, of the Fifth Georgia district, issued a statement, declaring his intention to secure an early investigation by the Department of Justice of alleged startling conditions in the Federal prison here. His statement followed charges against the prison management by Julian Hawthorne and Dr. W. J. Morton upon their release from the institution, where they had served sentences of more than six months. A message received here from the prison warden, William H. Moyer, who is now in Indianapolis, said the 800 prisoners here would sustain his statement that they were being treated "as well as they could expect."

ROYAL WEDDING WAS BRILLIANT.

Prince Of Connaught Marries Duchess Of Fife.

London.—Prince Arthur of Connaught, son of the Duke of Connaught, governor general of Canada, was married to Princess Alexandra Victoria, Duchess of Fife, eldest daughter of the widowed Princess Royal Louise. The ceremony took place in the ancient chapel of St. James Palace, where both were baptized. A futile attempt to reach King George and Queen Mary was made by a militant suffragette. Miss Margaret Sterling, as their Majesties were on the way to the wedding. The young woman broke through the line of police waving a petition, but she was seized and arrested.

FILIPINOS GIVEN CONTROL.

President Appoints Five To Membership On Commission.

Washington.—President Wilson and Secretary Garrison selected the following Filipinos to be members of the Philippine commission. Victorino Mapa, Jaime C. de Veyra, Vicente Ilustre, Vicente Singson. Mapa will be secretary of finance and justice. The fifth Filipino commissioner will be Rafael Palmo, who since 1908 has been the only native on the commission. His resignation was not accepted. Governor General Harrison recommended the native commissioners, stating that they were among the most prominent and best educated of the islanders.

OFFERED $10,000 FOR PLAY.

Miss Eleanor Wilson, However, Will Not Accept It.

Washington.—It was learned here that Miss Eleanor Wilson, the youngest daughter of President and Mrs. Wilson, will not accept the $10,000 offer of the Misses Nash, actresses, of New York, to write a play for them to co-star in.

MORE PANAMA QUAKES.

Seismograph Has Registered Thirty-One In Canal Zone To Date.

Panama.—Earthquake tremors continue, 31 having been registered by the Ancon seismograph. Reports received indicate another severe shock in Los Santos province on Saturday night. This disturbance extended as far as Panama City.

GERMAN EXHIBIT ASSURED.

Over 1,000 Favorable Responses To Invitations Received.

Washington.—An extensive German exhibit at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in 1915 is assured, acording to consular advices received at the State Department. Ambassador Gerard from Berlin stated that over 1,000 favorable responses have been received from invitations extended to great German commercial establishments to send representative displays to the United States.

NEW BALLOT ACT IS HELD LEGAL

Test Case Decided by Judges McCarrell and Gillan

WIDESPREAD IN ITS EFFECT

While Only One Act Was At Issue, Principle Sustained Is Same In All—Approved by Court of Last Resort.

(Special Harrisburg Correspondence.)

Harrisburg.—The non-partisan ballot act of 1913 was upheld by Judge S. J. M. McCarrell, of the Dauphin County Court, and W. Rush Gillan, of the Franklin county court, in opinions given in the test cases brought by the committee of seventy of Philadelphia to test the act as relating to the Philadelphia municipal court and by Thomas Ross, of Bucks county, to test the sole nomination clause.

Both sections were in the form of prayers for mandamus against the Secretary of the Commonwealth, one being to compel him to accept the Citizens' party ticket nominations for the municipal court and the other to compel him to certify the name of Ross to the Bucks county commissioners as a candidate for judge when Judge W. C. Ryan, his opponent for the nomination, had received more than fifty per cent. of the votes cast.

In ruling on the first action the judges say: "We have not been referred to any provision of the constitution which prohibits the legislature from making regulations by which the names of candidates are to be determined," and the court reviews the ballot act from 1891 to recent years and says: "These acts have all been declared by our court of last resort to be constitutional, and valid, and practically all of the questions here submitted have been already determined by judicial decision."

Head of His Class.

A story is being told about an uptown schoolboy who is posted on the advancement of medical science. This youngster has been reading about vaccination of people for smallpox and the inoculation against typhoid practiced in the regular army. Lately there has been diphtheria and other things that interfere with school work prevalent in some parts of the city and the juvenile reasoner figured out that if people could be vaccinated to prevent smallpox he could be made immune from diphtheria. He stands at the head of a class and he wants to stay there. The other day he dropped in on the family physician and asked to be vaccinated. The doctor started to humor him and asked why. "Some's boy's got diphtheria. I don't want it. You vaccinate me," replied the youngster. And the doctor had to do some awful sparring to save medical science from going below par.

Trade School for Boys.

Announcement was made that the Pennsylvania Railroad will open a trade school in Sunbury for its employes. A general knowledge of all the work done by the railroad has been prepared and a forty-two weeks' course under competent instructors is scheduled for all who may desire to take the offer.

In addition to the trades taught there will be a good knowledge of English, arithmetic, reading, writing, geography and spelling given.

This school will be similar to those in Harrisburg, Altoona and other cities and to those to be established at Renovo, Reading and other points. Instructors from State College will have charge.

Can't Oust Dr. Philips.

Judge George Kunkel, of the Dauphin County Court, rendered a decision which upholds the contentions of Attorney General Bell and the State Board of Education that Dr. George M. Philips is an asset of the West Chester State Normal School. The Court continues the preliminary injunction obtained last month by the State Board of Education to restrain the school's trustees from ousting Doctor Philips.

Great Stock Increase.

The Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey Power Company, of Scranton, filed the biggest return of an increase of stock or debt known on the "Hill" in a long, long time. The stock was increased from $405,000 to $5,000,000, and notice given of authority to issue bonds to the amount of $25,000,000.

Will Not Resign.

Highway Commissioner Bigelow came over from Pittsburgh and remarked that he was still alive and kicking. He has no thought of resigning and was attending to business as usual. He received delegations from Chester and Lancaster counties about roads.

Like a Real Hunter.

People proud of their hunter's license go around in hunting togs just outside of the city to warm up and display their togs. It is doubtful if the people who devised the new law could have hit anything better than the license on the sleeve. Everyone likes to display somethink like that and hunters, instead of evading the law by hiding it, are apparently proud to be enrolled. There is a lot of satisfaction in going along with a gun and khaki coat with a big license plastered on the sleeve.

SYNOPSIS.

Mrs. Varney, wife of a Confederate general, has lost one son and another is dying from wounds. She reluctantly gives her consent for Wilfred, the youngest, to join the army if his father consents. The federals are making their last assault in an effort to capture Richmond. Edith Varney secures from President Davis a commission for Capt. Thorne, who is just recovering from wounds, as chief of the telegraph at Richmond. Capt. Thorne tells Edith he has been ordered away. She declares he must not go and tells him of the commission from the president. Mr. Arrelsford of the Confederate secret service, a rejected suitor of Edith's, detects Jonas, Mrs. Varney's butler carrying a note from a prisoner in Libby prison. Arrelsford suspects it is intended for Thorne. The note reads: "Attack tonight. Plan 3. Use Telegraph." Arrelsford declares Thorne is Lewis Dumont of the Federal secret service, and that his brother Henry is a prisoner in Libby. Edith refuses to believe and suggests that Thorne be confronted with the prisoner as a test. An order comes from General Varney for Wilfred to report to the front at once. Edith is forced to carry out her part in the test of Thorne. The prisoner is thrust into the room alone with Thorne, who recognizes him as his elder brother, Henry Dumont. They put up a fake fight and Henry accidentally kills himself. Caroline Mitford, Wilfred's sweetheart, goes to the war department telegraph office to send a message to Wilfred. Arrelsford suspects a double meaning and refuses to let it go through. He and Edith secrete themselves to watch Thorne, whose arrival Arrelsford expects. Thorne takes charge of the telegraph office. Arrelsford and Edith see Thorne alter a dispatch from the secretary of war. Thorne is shot in the wrist by Arrelsford when he attempts to send it. Arrelsford calls the guard, and when they appear Thorne turns the tables by ordering the arrest of Arrelsford. The removal of Arrelsford is stopped by the arrival of General Randolph. Thorne again begins sending the dispatch. Arrelsford protests, declaring Thorne is sending a forged order to weaken the lines of defense. Thorne is saved by Miss Varney, who produces his commission as chief of telegraph. She, having seen enough to convince her he is a spy, begs him not to send the forged order. After she leaves he tears it up.

CHAPTER XVI.

The Tumult in Human Hearts.

Of the frightful nights in Richmond during the siege, that night was one of the worst. The comparative calmness of the earlier hours of repose of the quiet April evening gave way to pandemonium. The works at Petersburg, desperately held by the Confederates, were miles away from the city to the southward, but such was the tremendous nature of the cannonading that the shocking sounds seemed to be close at hand. Children cowered, women shuddered, and old men prayed as they thought of the furious onslaughts in the battle raging.

The Richmond streets were filled with people, mostly invalids, non-combatants, women and children. A tremendous attack was being launched by the besiegers somewhere, it was evident. Urgent messengers from General Lee called every reserve out of the garrison at Richmond, and the quiet streets and country highways awoke instantly to life. Such troops as could be spared moved to the front at the double-quick. Every car of the dilapidated railroad was pressed into service. Those who could not be transported by train went on horseback or afoot. The youngest boy and the oldest man alike shouldered their muskets, and with motley clothes, but with hearts aflame, marched to the sound of the cannon. The women, the sick, the wounded and invalid men and the children waited.

Morning would tell the tale. Into the city from which they marched men and boys would come back; an army nearly as great as had gone forth, but an army halting, maimed, helpless, wounded, suffering, shot to pieces. They had seen it too often not to be able to forecast the scene absolutely. They knew with what heroic determination their veterans, under the great Lee, were fighting back the terrific attacks of their brothers in blue, under the grimly determined Grant. They could hear his great warhammer ringing on their anvil; a hammer of men, an anvil of men. Plan or no plan, success or no success of some secret service operations, some vital point was being wrestled for in a death-grapple between two armies; and all the offensive capacities of the one and all the defensive resources of the other were meeting, as they had been meeting during the long years.

In a time like that, of public peril and public need, private and personal affairs ought to be forgotten, but it was not so. Love and hate, confidence and jealousy, faithfulness and disloyalty, self-sacrifice and revenge, were still in human hearts. And these feelings would put to shame even the passions engendered in the bloody battles of the fearful warfare.

Edith Varney, for instance, had gone out of the telegraph office assured that the sacrifice she had made for her lover had resulted in the betrayal of her country; that Thorne had had not even the common gratitude to accede to her request, although she had saved his life, and, for the time being, his honor. Every cannon-shot, every crashing volley of musketry that came faintly or loudly across the hills seemed pointed straight at her heart. For all she knew, the dispatch had been sent, the cunningly devised scheme had been carried out, and into some undefended gap in the lines the federal troops were pouring. The defense would crumble and the army would be cut in two; the city of Richmond would be taken, and the Confederacy would be lost.

And she had done it! Would she have done it if she had known? She had certainly expected to establish such a claim upon Thorne by her interposition that he could not disregard it. But if she had known positively that he would have done what she thought he did, would she have sent him to his death? She put the question to herself in agony. And she realized with flushes of shame and waves of contrition that she would not, could not have done this thing. She must have acted as she had, whatever was to come of it. Whatever he was, whatever he did, she loved that man.

The affair had been irritating beyond expression to Mr. Arrelsford. It had taken him some time to establish his innocence and to get his release from General Randolph's custody. Meanwhile, everything that he had hoped to prevent had happened. To do him justice, he really loved Edith Varney, and the thought that her actions and her words had caused his own undoing and the failure of his carefully laid plans, filled him with bitterness, which he vented in increased animosity toward Thorne.

And those were dreadful moments to Thorne. What had he done? He had risked everything, was ready to pay everything, would, indeed, be forced to do so in the end, and yet he had not done that which he had intended. Had he been false to his duty and to his country when he refused to send that telegram, being given the opportunity? He could not tell. The ethics of the question were beyond his present solution. The opportunity had come to him through a piece of sublime self-sacrifice on the part of the woman, who, knowing him thoroughly and understanding his plan and purpose, had yet perjured herself to save his life.

That life was hers, was it not? He had become her prisoner as much as if she had placed him under lock and key and held him without the possibility of communication with anyone. Her honor was involved. No, under the circumstances, he could not send the dispatch. The Confederates would certainly kill him if they caught him, and if they did not, and by any providential chance he escaped, his honor would compel him to report the circumstances, the cause of his failure, to his own superiors. Would they court-martial him for not sending the dispatch? Would they enter into his feelings, would they understand?

He stood looking at Foray for a while, and then, without a further command to that intensely surprised young man, or even a word of explanation, he seized his hat and coat and left the room. Foray was a keen-witted officer, he reviewed the situation briefly, and presently a great light dawned upon him. A certain admiration for Thorne developed in his breast, and as Allison opportunely came back at this juncture, he turned over the telegraph office to his subordinate, and in his turn went out on what he believed to be an exceedingly important errand.

Thorne found the streets full of people. He had not marked the beginning of the cannonading in the tumult of the office, but the lights, the bells pealing alarms from every church-steeple, the trampling of horses and men, and the roll of the gun-carriages apprised him of what was toward. Trusting that Thorne had been able to carry out his part, Grant was attacking the place indicated by "Plan 3" in heavy force.

What was Thorne to do? Obviously attempt to escape from Richmond, although it would be a matter of extreme difficulty on account of the alarm which now aroused every section. He could not go, either, until he had seen his brother. He surmised that he was dead, but he could not know that; and he determined not to attempt to leave without making assurance double sure. It was a duty he owed to his brother, to his father in the Union army, and to his superiors in the federal secret service. If that brother were alive, he must be at the Varney house. He fancied that he would run as little chance of being observed in the excitement going in that direction as in any other, and he started to make his way there.

The fact that Edith was there influenced him also. Was the call of love and the living as great, or greater than the call of duty and the dying or the dead? Who shall say?

And the remote chance that he might be observed on the way was taken by his ever-vigilant enemy; for Arrelsford, upon obtaining his freedom, had sent the troops at the disposal of the secret service to hunt him down, and one of them caught sight of him. The shout of the observer apprised him of his discovery. He threw one glance behind him and then ran for his life. He had no especial hope of escaping, but he might get to the Varney house ahead of the soldiers, and he might see his brother, and he might see the woman he loved for a moment before he was taken and killed.

CHAPTER XVII.

Wilfred Plays the Man.

A sharp contrast to the noise outside was presented by the quiet of the Varney house inside. The sewing women, in view of the attack and the movements of the boys and the old men, had separated sooner than they had intended and had gone their several ways. Old Jonas, frightened to death, remained locked up in the closet where he had been left by Arrelsford's men. Martha was upstairs in Howard's room, making ready to watch over him during the night.

Caroline Mitford had not gone home. She had sent word that she intended to pass the night at the Varney house. Somehow she thought they seemed to need her. She was standing by one of the long front windows in the drawing-room, now a scene of much disorder because of the recent struggle.

Caroline stared out of the window at the flashes of light. She listened, with heaving breast and throbbing heart, to the roar of the cannon and the rattle of musketry. She had heard both many times lately, but now it was different, for Wilfred was there. Mrs. Varney came upon her with her hand pressed against her breast, her face white and staring, tears brimming her eyes, but, as usual, Mrs. Varney was so engrossed with her own tremendous troubles that she had little thought for the girl.

"Caroline," she began anxiously, "tell me what happened. Edith won't speak to me. She has locked herself up in her room. What was it? Where has she been? What—"

"She was at the telegraph office," answered Caroline in a low voice.

"What did she do there? What happened there?"

"I am not sure."

"But try to tell me, dear."

"I would if I could, Mrs. Varney, but I was afraid and ran out and waited for her in the hall. The rest of them—" The girl broke off as the deep tones of the city bells clanged sharply above the diapason of artillery.

"It's the alarm bell," said Mrs. Varney.

"Yes," said Caroline, "they are calling out the last reserves."

"Yes; hark to the cannonading. Isn't it awful?" returned Mrs. Varney. "They must be making a terrible attack tonight. Lieutenant Maxwell was right; that quiet spell was a signal."

"There goes another battery of artillery," said Caroline, staring through the window. "A man told us that they were sending them all over to Cemetery Hill. That's where the fighting is, Cemetery Hill."

"General Varney's division is to the right of that position, or was the last time I heard from him," said Mrs. Varney anxiously.

"I am afraid they are going to have a bad time of it tonight," said Caroline, drawing the curtains and turning away from the window.

"I'm afraid so," was the rejoinder. "Now, try to think, dear, who was at the telegraph office? Can't you tell me something that occurred that will explain Edith's silence? She looks like death, and—"

"I can't tell you anything except that they arrested Mr. Arrelsford."

"Mr. Arrelsford! You don't mean that?"

"Yes, I do," answered Caroline. "General Randolph—I went and brought him there, because they wouldn't send my telegram—he was in a fearful temper—"

"But Edith? Can't you tell me what she did?"

"I can't, Mrs. Varney, for I don't know. I waited for her in the hall, and when she came out she couldn't speak. Then we hurried home. I tried to get her to tell me, but she wouldn't say a word except that her heart was broken, and that's all I know, Mrs. Varney, truly, truly."

"I believe you, my dear. I know you would tell me if you could."

"I certainly would, for I love—"

There was a loud ring at the front door. It was evidently unlocked, for, without waiting for an answer, it was thrown open roughly, and through the hall and into the drawing-room stalked Mr. Arrelsford. He was wildly excited, evidently in a tremendous hurry, and utterly oblivious to manners or anything else. He had been checked and thwarted so many times that he was in a bad temper for anything.

"Is your daughter in the house?" he began roughly, without any further preliminaries or salutation, without even removing his hat.

"Answer," he said harshly.

She bowed her head in the affirmative, scarcely able to speak in her indignation at his manner and bearing.

"I wish to see her."

"I don't believe she will care to receive you at present," returned her mother quietly.

"What she cares to do at present is of small consequence. I must see her at once. Shall I go up to her room with these men, or will you have her down here?"

The room had filled with soldiers as the two spoke together.

"Neither the one nor the other, sir," said Mrs. Varney, who was not in the least afraid of Mr. Arrelsford or his soldiers, "until I know your business with her."

"My business—a few questions—I've got a few questions to ask her. Listen to that noise out yonder? Do you hear those guns and the troops passing by? Now, you know what 'Attack tonight, Plan 3,' means."

"Is that the attack?" asked Mrs. Varney.

"That's the attack. They are breaking through our lines at Cemetery Hill. That was the place indicated by 'Plan 3.' We are rushing to the front all the reserves we have, to the last man and boy, but they may not get there in time."

"What, may I ask, has my daughter to do with it?"

"Do with it? She did it!" asserted Arrelsford bitterly.

"What!" exclaimed Mrs. Varney, in a great outburst of indignation. "How dare you!"

"We had him in a trap, under arrest, the telegraph under guard, when she brought in that commission. We would have shot him in a moment, but they took me prisoner and let him go."

"Impossible!" whispered Mrs. Varney. "You don't mean—"

"Yes, she did. She put the game in his hands. He got control of the wires and the dispatch went through. As soon as I could get to headquarters I explained, and they saw the trick. They rushed the guard back, but the scoundrel had got away. Foray was gone, too, and Allison knew nothing about it, but we're after him, and if she knows where he is," he turned as if to leave the room and ascend the stairs, "I will get it out of her."

"You don't suppose that my daughter would—" began Mrs. Varney.

"I suppose everything."

"I will not believe it," persisted the mother.

"We can't wait for what you believe," said Arrelsford roughly, this time taking a step toward the door.

Mrs. Varney caught him by the arm. "Let me speak to her," she pleaded.

"No, I will see her myself."

But Miss Mitford, who had been the indirect cause of so much trouble, once more interposed. She had listened to him with scarcely less surprise than that developing in Mrs. Varney's breast. She took a malicious joy in thwarting the secret service agent. She barred the way, her slight figure in the door, with arms extended.

"Where is your order for this?" she asked.

Arrelsford stared at her in surprise.

"How about your geometry? I want you to do something in that." "Well, it's this way, father. Unless I make a certain percentage in football, they won't let me take the geometry at all."

PREDICTS A TOOTHLESS AGE

British Doctor Gives Out Opinion That Soft Foods Are Working Havoc With the Race.

What our dentists have from time to time been saying has been at last taken up by a London doctor, namely, that our teeth are less solidly set in the jaws than they should be for the reason that civilization encourages us to eat soft foods. "Biting is becoming a lost art," says this British doctor. "The surest way to save your teeth from extinction is to bite hard substances. Growing young people of today should be given a diet of hard biscuits and chop bones." He points out that the jaws of today are narrower than those of our ancestors—and this applies to America as well as to Britain—and that unless some changes are made in our mode of life evolution will breed a race that will be practically toothless. He gives as the reason for the narrowing of the jaws and that they are less powerful that they are not sufficiently exercised; that we do not use our teeth to crunch hard foods as did the early Britishers. He notes that wisdom teeth, owing to the general narrowness of the jaws, are cut at all manner of times, and tells of a man of fifty-two who had just cut a wisdom tooth owing to the removal of other molars which at last allowed it to show itself above the gum.

For Young Mothers.

In the literary columns of a contemporary there has been a discussion recently on library catalogue blunders and mistakes made in ordering books by their titles.

Only one of the instances seems really new. It is the case of a small boy who collects moths and was in search of a text-book on the subject.

After studying the catalogue of the local library for some time he applied for and obtained a book which, he thought, would be the very thing he wanted.

It was "Dr. Blank's Advice to Young Mothers!"—Pearson's Weekly.

COMMERCIAL

Weekly Review of Trade and Market Reports.

Bradstreet's says:

"Cross currents in trade matters are noticeable. However, distributive trade sentiment is optimistic, the influence of crop money is being felt in agricultural districts, demand for prompt shipment of textiles is a pronounced feature of a scantily supplied market and buying of staple articles is liberal.

"Most reports indicate that trade generally is ahead of last year, when jobbers and manufacturers were enjoying especial activity, collections continue to mend, demand for money for mercantile purposes is good and car shortages are in prospect.

"Yet it is probable that trade is a shade less active than last week, this being due to an intermingling of various factors. Changed tariff conditions, believed by many to have been discounted, tend to restrict buying, pending clearer views on price trends and effects of withdrawals from bonded warehouses and unseasonably warm weather has militated against free distribution.

"Business failures for the week were 314."

LOCALS

Veterinary Surgeon George Kaup of Boalsburg was a caller at this office last week. Dr. Kaup is on the road much of the time and on his trips covers a large portion of the country.

Persons who are acquainted with the farm state that former Prothonotary Arthur Kimport owns a very fine home in Chester county, and that the purchase was made at a bargain.

The good roads meeting in Bellefonte was attended by L. L. Smith, C. E Flink, W. C. Boozer, 'Squire Carson, James Moyer, C. F. Thomas, and several others from the south side.

The last week of October will witness a convention of three thousand Methodist men in the city of Indianapolis. One purpose of this meeting is to refute the silly slander that men are not church goers. It promises to be a memorable convention.

William Bradford, tenant on the Col. Taylor farm which was recently sold to Mr. Hoy, will make sale of his large stock of horses and cattle some time next spring. In the meantime he is keeping an eye on several Chester county farms, and if his present plans carry out, he will locate in that county and continue farming.

Prof. and Mrs. P. H. Meyer, last week, returned from a ten days' trip through Dauphin, Lebanon, Lancaster and York counties, making the trip in their Ford runabout. Two days were spent at the York fair, and some time was also spent with relatives in Campbelltown, Palmyra and Harrisburg.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Hettinger of Altoona were in Centre Hall last week, guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Fye. They came to Penns Valley to see Mrs. Hettinger's mother, Mrs. Breon, who is in very delicate health at the home of another daughter, Mrs. H. B. Frankenberger, east of Centre Hall.

Some of the local baseball fans at Millheim banqueted Paul Musser, the baseball pitcher, a native of that town. The spread was laid at the National hotel, and the plates were claimed by R. S. Stover, Dr. John Harclenbergh, John F. and Grover Musser, W. E Keen, S. Ward Gramley, H. F. McManaway, Guy Springer and Simon Springer and, of course, Mr. Musser.

Hon. Jerome T. Ailman of Perry county, who is well known in Centre county among the members of the order of Patrons of Husbandry, is in a very feeble condition, suffering from a diseased bone in one of his lower limbs. Within the last year Mr. Ailman fell and broke one of his legs near the hip, and from that time the disease began its work. Amputation is supposed to be the only remedy, but Mr. Ailman is not able to undergo such an operation.

Coal—Weber.

Vote for but One.

The non-partizan ballot for the November election will contain the names of four candidates, two of whom will be elected. The voter is privileged to vote but for one candidate on this ballot.

A Young Hunter Killed.

Roy Gardner, aged twenty, a plumber of Huntingdon, while hunting, was shot and killed some time on Thursday of last week by an unknown hunter. His body was found with the side of his face torn away, the wound evidently made by a gun at close range.

Hunter Accidentally Shoots Son.

John Gallagher, Jr., aged fifteen years, of New Washington, is in the Clearfield hospital suffering from wounds in his face and arms, the result of a gunning accident while out hunting on Wednesday of last week with his father. The boy was sitting on a stump resting when a pheasant flew up. His father shot at the bird, which swooped toward the ground. A second shot was fired and to the horror of the father the leaden bullets struck the boy in the arms and face as stated, and he may lose the sight of one of his eyes.

Misrepresenting Facts.

The question of the $50,000,000 loan for roads is a question of how the funds for road purposes shall be raised. The question whether or not the state should relieve local communities of the expense of road building is not involved. The state has taken over these roads, and must build them. The only question for the people to decide is whether the funds shall be raised by bonding the state or whether a more economic and business like method—pay as you go—should be adopted.

Some of the advocates of the bonding method in Centre county are grossly misrepresenting the question at issue. They are doing so for a purpose.

Sunday to be at Johnstown.

Rev. William Sunday the ex-baseball player and noted evangelist, on Sunday, November 2nd, will begin a six weeks' evangelistic campaign in Johnstown. A large tabernacle is being built in which to hold the services, and fifty churches have formed the Conemaugh Valley Evangelistic Association in order to boost the meetings. They have applied for an act of incorporation, and are selling stock at $1.00 per share, and at the first meeting of the association's committee forty-seven churches reported that $12,292 worth of stock had been subscribed to defray the expenses of the campaign. Cottage prayer meetings are being held all over the city.

The Primary Ballot Law.

The Reporter has been asked to give the law under the late party enrollment act, as to whether or not a voter can receive or vote a ballot other than the one under the party he is enrolled. The law is very specific on this point, and forbids the election board, under a heavy penalty, to give the voter any ballot other than the one he is enrolled under. The law further says:

"No voter enrolled as a member of any one particular party shall be allowed to receive or vote the ballot of any other political party at a primary election; any voter wilfully voting or attempting to vote in violation of this provision is guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to imprisonment for one year and a fine of a thousand dollars"

The writer has not looked into this matter, but there is common talk that this feature of the primary law has been violated. If there really have been violations, an investigation should be made.

LOCALS.

George E. Furey and family of Martinsville, Illinois, have moved to the Fury home near Bellefonte.

Miss Elizabeth Saunders came down from State College to see her chums in Centre Hall, remaining here for several days.

Friday, November 7th, will be Pennsylvania Day at State College. Governor Tener and a number of senators and representatives will be at the institution and inspect it on that day.

Lee Brooks will move from his Isthel's farm, along Nittany Mountain, near Linden Hall, to the Woods farm at Penns Cave Station, east of Old Fort. The latter farm is now tenanted by Edward Jamison.

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Rishel will complete their visit among friends in Penns Valley this week, and on Saturday they will return to their home in Hope, Arkansas. They refer to their visit as a decidedly pleasant one, and regret that it is so nearly ended.

DEATHS.

Adam Krumrine, one of Potter township's well known citizens, passed away at his home at Tusseyville on Tuesday after an illness extending over a period of several weeks. Interment will be made at Tusseyville, and the sevices will be conducted by Rev. R. R. Jones and Rev. F. W. Barry on Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Mr. Krumrine was the son of Frederick Krumrine, the last survivor of the family, and was born in Penn township. He was married in 1854 to Miss Sarah Jane Weaver, and the couple began housekeeping at Penn Hall. He was a farmer by occupation, and lived in various sections, but the greater part of his active life was spent in Potter township, in the vinicinity of Tusseyville. He was a kind hearted, liberal minded man, a Democrat in politics, and was elected to various local offices which were acceptably filled.

There survives him his wife, and two daughters; Mrs. Charles W. Swartz Tusseyville, and Mrs James R Irwin, Bellfonte, R. D.

Mrs. Mary A Breon died on Tuesday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry B. Frankenberger, east of Centre Hall, where she had been temporarily stsying. The funeral services will be held from the Frankenbarger home on Friday forenoon, and will be conducted by Rev F. W. Barry. Interment at Spring Mills.

The deceased maiden name was Long, and she was the widow of the late John F. Breon, who died in Gregg township, where the family had lived for many years. There survive her seven children, namely: Robert T., Horsehead, N. Y.; Willis P., Mill Hall; John F., Altoona; Mrs. H. M Hettinger, Altoona; Mrs. H. B. Frankenberger, Centre Hall; Mrs Oscar C. Homan, Spring Mills; Mrs H. E Fye, Centre Hall.

There survive her also these brothers and sisters: John D. Long, Spring Mills; Jonathan Long, in the West; Mrs. Lizzie Grenninger, Mill Hall; Mrs Polly Baker, Hope, Kansas.

Mrs. Breon was a member of the Lutheran church for many years, and was faithful as such. Her age was seventy-three years.

Mrs Mina McClintic Crouse, wife of Halloway Crouse, died on Sunday night at her home in Aaronsburg, aged forty-three years. Interment will be made this (Thursday) forenoon.

Mrs. Crouse's death was very sudden and was due to congestion of the lungs She and her husband and a brother from Lock Haven retired Sunday evening about eleven o' clock, at which time Mrs. Crouse seemed to be in her usual health. A half hour later she become ill, and within an hour death came.

The deceased is survived by her husband, and two children—Ruth and Harry, both at home, also her aged mother who is living in Lock Haven, and two sisters and four brothers

Mrs. S. Martha Teede, mother of Mrs. Samuel Moore, died at the latter's home in Westmont, New Jersey, on Sunday. When Mrs. Moore lived in Centre Hall, her mother visited her, and she will be recalled by those who were acquainted with the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Musser of Aaronsburg are mourning the death of their four-months old child. Interment will be made today (Thursday) at Aaronsburg.

An infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Winkleblech of Aaronsburg died on Tuesday.

Suicide of Business Man.

David Hoban Furst, forty-two years old, a business man from Lock Haven, committed suicide at Philadelphia on Sunday by jumping from the fifth floor of a hospital, where he was being treated for nervous trouble. A male nurse who was his constant companion awoke just in time to see the patient leaping from the window. His body was found in the areaway, seventy-five feet below.

LOCALS.

The trouble with grass widows is that they are never as green as they sound.

There will be a special meeting of the Y. P. B. in their hall in the Reporter block this (Thursday) evening.

Miss Mollie Hoffer is quite ill, and has been confined to bed for a week or more. She and her sister, Mrs. Catharine Dale, live together in Centre Hall.

Rev. R R Jones, pastor of the Reformed church, is attending the sessions of the Eastern Synod of the Reformed church in the United States, at Sunbury. He will return home Friday. Dr. H. F. Bitner accompanied him as delegate.

N. Bigler Shaffer of near Spring Bank, was in town on Tuesday, and called at this office. He stated that his father, the venerable Michael Shaffer, is able to take extended walks on some days, but on others he is obliged to remain in the house.

The State board of health appointed these medical inspectors for fourth class school districts on the south side of Centre county: Dr. J. V. Foster, Centre Hall, for Potter and Harris townships; Dr. J. A Hardenberg for Millheim borough; Dr. S. G. Coons, Stormstown, for Patton township, State College borough and College township.

Mrs. Jane B. Heilman, wife of Rev. Dr. Philip A. Heilman, a former pastor of St. John's English Lutheran church, of Lock Haven, died in an ambulance on the way from the Baltimore Union station to her home in that city, from nervous prostration and bronchilis. Dr. Heilman is now pastor of the St. Paul's English Lutheran church in the latter city.

A deer with a broken fore leg was captured in the Stone Creek district, in the Seven Mountains, and taken to Lewistown in an auto, with the hope that a veterinary surgeon might save its life. The animal was so thoroughly exhausted that it permitted itself to be stroked and petted, but it was so reduced from starvation and pain that it died shortly after reaching the surgeons quarters.

In Mifflin county, up at McVeytown, a stock grower keeps a lantern lighted in his hog pen so that each of a litter of eighteen pigs can get its own nipple without disturbing the other pigs in the pen. At Centre Hall, or just outside of it, "Mike" Condo keep a phonograph running in his hen house with the hope that the hens will sing a new lay when the 40 cent eggs are laid.

The latter part of last week, Mrs. Catharine Dale had the misfortune to fall down a stairway in her home in Centre Hall. She was not seriously injured, but the results might have been so, for she was carrying a lighted lamp and flames from it set fire to the carpet. Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Mitterling, who occupy a portion of the house, went to the rescue, outened the fire, and aided Mrs. Dale in setting things in proper order.

Nittany Valley farmers are beginning to appreciate that the farms about Centre Hall are productive and capable of building up bank accounts. The last farmer to take advantage of the favorable conditions here is Michael Delaney, who will succeed his brother, Thomas Delaney, as tenant on the Baird farm, south of town. Other Nittany Valley farmers to locate here either as owners or tenants, during the past few years are W. H. Baird, Thomas and John Delaney, Charles T Crust, W. E Tate, G. W. Ralston.

Miss Grace Wieland of Boalsburg was a visitor in town this week.

Joseph Campbell returned Monday from a trip through the western states.

A little daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ross on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Schreck spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Weibly.

Miss Lavon Ferree came up from the Lock Haven Normal to spend Sunday at the home of her parents.

LOCALS.

Clyde Stover moved from Millheim into the Colyer house. He is the engineer at the Weber flouring Mills.

It is easier to give the stamp of approval than to stamp a thing out.

The coal bins are being filled, and its a real shame to do it on these beautiful fall days.

Small game appears to be scarce hereabouts. No reports of success have found their way to this office. The trespass notices no doubt are partially responsible for this condition.

W. S. Mallalieu, manager of the Bell telephone exchange of the Bellefonte district, and Mr. Kelly, of Williamsport, a service inspector, were in Centre Hall on Wednesday and favored this office with their presence. Both are very much devoted to the Bell company, and are giving their best efforts to make the Bell telephone indespensable in the business place and home.

Harris Township.

The Civic Club of Boalsburg promise an evening of fun at their masquerade Hallow'een party in Boal Hall. They expect some very notable people to be present, Enoch and Maria Pickleweight and family have promised to come, and many other equally good characters will be there. The ladies will serve Hallow'een refreshments. The doors will be open at eight and the grand march and introduction of characters will take place at half past eight. Admissions will be fifteen and twenty-five cents.

Owing to the inclement weather on Saturday the good roads jolification was held in the Boal Hall instead of the meadow as had been announced. The tables were ladened with good things. No "empty dinner pails" were in sight. Guests from Bellefonte, Lemont, State College, Centre Hall and Linden Hall were present, numbering in all about one hundred and sixty. The addresses by the different speakers and music by the Boalsburg band were highly appreciated.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Grove of Pinegrove Mills spent Saturday at Boalsburg.

Mrs. Susan Keller of Axemann is visiting with relatives at Boalsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Murray, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Meyer and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Dale attended the funeral of J. D. Murray at Centre Hall on Saturday.

Mrs. Ellen Shuey and Mrs. Margaret Kuhn spent Friday at State College.

Mrs. Wm. Myers and Mrs. Ruhl of Spring Mills spent a few days at Boalsburg.

Mrs. Clara Rupp spent part of last week with her sister, Mrs. George Shuey at Shiloh.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Harrison and daughter, Miss Rhoda, spent Sunday at State College.

S. E. Weber shipped three car loads of hay this week.

A number of the little boys of Boalsburg enjoyed Monday evening at the Harro home. The event was a celebration of the birthday of their playmate, Leroy Harro.

Spring Mills

Dr. and Mrs. H. S. Braucht went to Dewart one day last week to visit the former's brother, Newton Braucht, they also went on to Williamsport and Lock Haven, to visit friends.

Moses Stover will move into Wm. Allison's house vacated by Ralph Ricker, who moved to Mill Hall.

Windom Gramley, Bright Bitner and several others attended the good roads meeting at Bellefonte last week.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Jacob McCool a son, on October 17th.

Roy Corman, a student in Franklin and Marshall College, spent a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Corman.

Robert Smith is building an extensive poultry house.

MRS. MANGES ESCAPES OPERATION

How She Was Saved From Surgeon's Knife by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mogadore, Ohio.—"The first two years I was married I suffered so much from female troubles and bearing down pains that I could not stand on my feet long enough to do my work. The doctor said I would have to undergo an operation, but my husband wanted me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound first. I took three bottles and it made me well and strong and I avoided a dreadful operation. I now have two fine healthy children, and I cannot say too much about what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. LEE MANGES, R. F. D. 10, Mogadore, Ohio.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

A Beautiful Woman

Her complexion was just like peaches and cream, and she didn't have a wrinkle. Well, don't envy her, you can have a complexion just like hers. Here is the wonderful secret. Purchase from your druggist two ounces of Casosterine and add to four ounces of water; this will make a massage cream which should be used each night. Also purchase two ounces of Borosterine and add to eight ounces of water; this will make a greaseless cream which should be used directly after the massage. In a short time you will be surprised to see the bloom of youth return to the sallow cheeks, the pimples, blackheads and wrinkles disappear, and once again you can wear your favorite colors. If your druggist is unable to supply you, send one dollar direct to the Cootes Laboratories, Norfolk, Va., and you will receive these products by return mail.

NEW TAILORED SUITS

HAVE MARKED DISTINCTNESS IN CUT AND FINISH.

Departure From the Mannish Feature Is Noted—Tendency to Drapery on Both Skirts and Coats—Much Fur Will Be Used.

Fall tailored suits will be characterized by various eccentricities of cut and finish. Occasionally a mannish model is to be noted among the new consignments, but for the most part they are more on the costume order, and, although plain and exceedingly well tailored, nevertheless have a more formal appearance than the coat and skirt of other seasons.

Much fur will be used, and there is a decided tendency to drape not only the skirts but the coats, or at least to have them hint of drapery. Skirts are still narrow at the foot, but usually have some fullness, variously arranged, at the top—that is, there may be a few gathers distributed along the sides only or across the back and front or strung uniformally around the top, and there is usually a break in the folds at the knee line or ankles, caused by raising or lowering the material where it is attached to the waistband. Generally this marks the extent of attempts at draping.

Today's sketch shows a suit that is typical of fall's fashion. It is developed in the wedgwood blue velours de laine, and has for trimming band cuffs and a rolling collar of gray fox fur.

The cutaway jacket is extremely smart, fitting smoothly in front and blousing a little in back. A sash of black moire is run through an eyelet on either side of the front at the bust line, and from there is carried downward and tied in a bow below the waist in back, with two not very long sash ends.

The fronts are left open for a space of five or six inches, disclosing a crossed vest of white wool ratine, with a row of tiny steel buttons in the center.

The material is used diagonally throughout, and in the skirt there are just two seams, directly in front and in back. The lower part of the front of the skirt is lifted up in draped folds that are held in place under a narrow perpendicular band of self-material, and there is a small curved opening above the feet.

At the raised waist line in back a row of gathers is covered by another narrow band of self-material, finished at either end with a steel button.—Washington Star.

EASY TO WIND THE SKEIN

Little Contrivance Does Away With the Necessity of Impressing Small Boy or Girl.

It is unnecessary to dwell upon the difficulty of winding a skein of wool into a ball without the aid of a second pair of hands, but with the simple little contrivance shown in our sketch, this may be done with ease, and the holder can be made in a few moments.

It merely consists of a piece of board in which a number of holes have been made and into which pegs (ordinary clothes pegs will answer the purpose) can be firmly inserted.

Two picture rings can be screwed into the upper edges of the wood and the holder can be hung upon the wall, and in that case, the pegs should be fastened in the holes at an angle pointing upwards or the board with the skein placed round the pegs can be held in the lap or on the table and so used, and the small sketch on the right illustrates it in this position.

The object of having holes in the board at various distances apart is that the pegs can be placed at different distances apart, so that the holder will take a skein of any size.

WEAR YOUR CLOTHES EASILY

Getting This Effect Is More to the Purpose Than Simply the Wearing of Rich Clothing.

A little while ago a Frenchman said that English women were getting so that they wore their clothes more easily than they used to. He rejoiced at the fact. Women should wear their clothes easily. A beautiful gown worn stiffly is no better than an ugly gown worn graciously. In fact, the beautiful gown in this case is not so good as the other.

Was there ever any sight more distressing than that of a simple woman dressed in all her Sunday best? Her clothes were well enough. They were well made and of good material. But she looked afraid of them and wore them stiffly. How much better she looked in gingham house dress, with apron and sunbonnet, perhaps to match.

And then there is the economical young girl who wears her "best" clothes always as if she had their value in mind and was trying to take care of them. She smoothes them out and holds them well away from furniture and neighbors, that they—the clothes—may not be contaminated by touching anything. A young girl always looks better in a simple frock, comfortably and therefore gracefully worn, than in a really elaborate frock which she wears stiffly.

Lovely clothes should be worn joyously, even indifferently. It is not hard to do this now, for clothes are soft and clinging and graceful, and refuse to let their wearers look stiff and "careful." So now, while fashion is with you, cultivate the art of wearing your clothes as if they were glad you had them, as if they were a joy, not a burden, to you.

BETTER THAN OLDER STYLES

Frock for Small Girl Is a Compromise Between Two Blouse Effects Long Popular.

A frock for a girl of eight to ten appears in the accompanying drawing. It is a sort of compromise between the Balkan and Russian blouse styles, both of which are so becoming to children of this age. This may be made up in wool material, or if the days of tub dresses have not yet been passed, a dainty linen, chambray or other washable material would be pretty. The blouse has slightly more fullness than the Russian styles and joins a short and rather scant skirt under a broad sash of plaid silk, if the frock has been made of wool material. The wide collar is of the silk, faced with the material. The plaid pipes also the drop shoulder seams, front closing and cuffs.

Place for Pockets.

Latest fashion advices grant women pockets of all sorts, sizes and variety of placing. So oddly draped are some of the late Paris race track gowns that the appearance is suggested of pockets over each hip in true trouser pocket style.

MANY NEW LINGERIE EFFECTS

Styles Change in This as in All Other Matters Connected With Feminine Apparel.

The white corset cover, run with baby ribbon, does not show through the sheer fine blouses of the day.

It is replaced by the lace or tucked net brassiere on which wide satin ribbons are mounted frankly as a trimming.

Some of these sheer blouses have slips of flesh-colored chiffon beneath, which give a suggestively transparent effect without actual transparency.

Lingerie waists of fine batiste with embroidery trimmings are worn over slips of flesh-tinted chiffon with lovely effect.

Organdie is a new blouse fabric, also, but it is used without the stiff dressing that used to make the material stand out crisply.

Embroidery is added as bandings and motifs, or in the shape of collars and cuffs, on blouses of tucked white material.

Dainty lingerie models have crossed fichus of net and fine embroidery draped over the bust.

Flower and Fruit Fad.

We are to have a fruit and flower autumn, say the sartorial authorities. Small blossoms are painted, embroidered or appliqued on our chiffons and ninon gowns. Roses, orchids or iris we wear in our waistbands, and something that might be apricots or peaches garnishes our hats, to say nothing of clusters of cherries and the grapes in post-impressionist purples and greens.

KEEP SEED POTATOES IN COOL PLACE

A Fine Yield of Potatoes.

(By WILLIAM H. UNDERWOOD.)

Potatoes intended for seed should be kept hard and plump during the winter and this can be done only by keeping them so cool that they will not sprout.

When potatoes sprout they take part of the starch that is stored up in them and manufacture it into living cells. This energy is all wasted for the sprouts have to be pulled off.

Some farmers make it a point to "sprout" their potatoes once or twice during the winter, this being done to prevent their growing. But the amount of energy thus lost is considerable, and the loss increases as the winter draws to a close.

I raise potatoes in large quantities and each year place them in cold storage. I prefer to pay the expense of the storage and be sure that they are kept in a perfectly plump state rather than to keep them in a room with a high temperature as is done by some.

In the spring the potatoes come out of the cold storage house in perfect condition and it takes but a few weeks for them to develop strong sprouts that rise out of the soil and develop strong stalks and leaves.

Many farmers have not the opportunity to put their potatoes in cold-storage houses, but they should endeavor to keep their potatoes at a very low temperature. The nearer 33 degrees the potatoes are kept, the better.

INJURIES BY THE BAGWORM

In Last Few Years Pest Has Abandoned Evergreens and Attacked Many Deciduous Trees.

(By L. HASEMAN.)

The tough silken bags hanging from limbs and twigs of evergreen, shade and fruit trees in the winter are familiar to many farmers throughout the country. The caterpillar which makes these is commonly called a bagworm, basketworm or dropworm. In the past it has been more or less troublesome on evergreens, but in the last few years it has become destructive to many deciduous trees and shrubs. The rapid increase and spread of the pest to orchards and to shade trees and ornamental shrubs in cities, parks and cemeteries have occasioned a great deal of loss in the past three or four years.

The bagworm is easy to control, at least upon trees of moderate size. There are two methods of destroying the pest, by collecting all of the bags and by spraying with poison. If the bagworm is restricted to only a few trees, one can easily collect all of the bags in the winter when the leaves are off. This method is in common use and is entirely effective, if carefully done. It does not work so well on evergreens and, of course, is out of the question in very large orchards or groves. In such cases it is necessary to spray when the young caterpillars begin to feed upon the foliage in the spring. Early spraying should be practiced as the pest is destroyed before the foliage is consumed. The first regular application of poison for the codling moth, just after the blossoms fall in the spring, will also control the bagworm in orchards. One careful application of poison before the first of June will usually control the pest either upon fruit, evergreen or shade trees.

Dividing Rhubarb Roots.

Late fall is a good time to divide the rhubarb roots. Now is a good time to make preparations for the work.

During the early part of September dig the ground up around the roots and scatter or mix in with this layer a little well-rotted horse manure. In a month or so the roots can be divided and the new hills started.

SOME PURE-MILK PROBLEMS

Most Important Aside From Feeding Is of Barn and Its Accommodations, Says Oregon Student.

For the dairyman whose aim is the profitable production of pure milk, probably the most important problem, aside from the feeding, is that of the barn and its accommodations, writes E. S. Wisdom, a student at the Oregon Agricultural college, in an article in the Oregon Countryman, the student agricultural magazine.

The dairy cow requires, for the highest production, comfortable and healthy quarters which are protected from the inclement weather, he continues. A warm, substantial stable is almost imperative in the cold climate. It must not be forgotten, however, that the health of the herd is likely to be impaired unless proper precautions are taken to insure rigid cleanliness and abundance of light and fresh air.

An expensive structure is unnecessary, but one that will be convenient for the labor and furnish contentment to the herd should be provided. The location should be chosen to maintain the highest degree of sanitation, depending largely upon the drainage. The tile-drained barnyards often eliminate the undesirable conditions found commonly. Whenever it is possible, the barn should be built on a knoll, though never on an elevation higher than the house occupies.

Convenience of access from different parts of the farm saves labor and time. Barns near a main road or across a road from the house are not recommended. The landing should face north and south, so that the sunlight might enter from both sides during the day.

ATTENTION TO SHEEP FLOCK

No Animal Feels and Shows Neglect More Quickly—Should Have a Well-Ventilated Shed.

Sheep are dainty feeders. They will not eat hay that other stock have mussed over, and they will refuse grain taken from a ratty bin.

Sheep should have a well-ventilated shed, high and dry. In dry weather they should be allowed their freedom to run out and in at will.

Nothing will feel or show neglect as quickly as sheep. Place the unthrifty ewes by themselves, and give them a little extra feed. Perhaps they are suffering from the greed of the bosses in the flock, and are not getting a full ration. Oats, wheat, bran, linseed meal and clover hay should be provided for ewes. Dip the sheep immediately after shearing, and again in about three weeks to destroy the ticks, that may have escaped at the first dipping.

Make a Compost Heap.

A veritable gold mine above ground is the up-to-date compost heap. Every gardener if he be wise will have one.

Lawn mowings, leaves, weeds, refuse from the house, garbage, feathers, old shoes, soap water, bones, sand, woolen rags, wood ashes, lime plaster, sod, straw, etc., etc., begin a life of usefulness in the compost heap.

Orchard Should Have Care.

Many farmers pay little attention to the trees until time for the harvest, and they wonder at the unsatisfactory crop. No orchard can be expected to produce results without good care.

It was at the vaudeville. The girl with the excruciating voice had just finished her song.

"Just think!" groaned Brown, to the stranger beside him. "we paid real money to hear that!"

"I didn't," was the placid response. "Came in on a 'comp.'"

"But you had to spend carfare to get here, did you not?" asked Brown.

"Nope," replied the uncomplaining one. "I live in walking distance."

"But," persisted Brown desperately "at least you hoped to be entertained, not punished."

"No, I didn't care," grinned the stranger. I came to get away from home. My wife is cleaning house."—Judge.

SKIN TROUBLE ITCHED BADLY

Glenns P. O., Va.—"My baby's trouble began with an itching and then a little bump would come and she could not rest day or night. The trouble affected her whole body. The bumps festered and came to a head and the corruption looked like thick matter, kind of a yellow color. The sores itched so badly until it seemed to me she would scratch herself to pieces and then a sore would form and her clothes would stick to her body and pull off the little scab. In some places she would scratch and irritate the sores until they seemed to be large. She was affected about a year.

"I wrote for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I bathed her body in warm water and Cuticura Soap and then I applied the Cuticura Ointment, and they afforded relief after twice using. I bought some more Cuticura Soap and Ointment and inside of two weeks she was cured." (Signed) Mrs. J. R. Greggs, Nov. 21, 1912.

Earthquakes in Scotland.

Earthquake shocks have recently been experienced in the central part of Scotland. A tremor was distinctly felt in all parts of Bridge of Allan the other morning, but no damage was done. Two earthquake shocks were experienced in Dunblane district early the previous morning. Generally sound sleepers were awakened by the rattling of windows and doors, and more than one housewife had to gather up the fragments of broken china in the morning caused by the shock. It is also reported that the pheasants from the hills had been scared by the unusual occurrence, as those about at that time observed them as if in a panic. The shock lasted nearly half a minute.

ELBOWS WIN OYLMPIC RACES

President Thompson of American Committee Makes Caustic Reply to Englishman's Accusations.

Answering a statement made in the London Morning Post by Guy Nickalls, the English oarsman, that he had heard it said, "In Stockholm elbows won more races for the Americans than their legs," Robert M. Thompson, president of the American Olympic committee, declares in the same paper that the charges are grossly absurd. Mr. Thompson flays Nickalls for not judging for himself, instead of accepting the opinion of some one, "who, not satisfied with the results, had to invent reasons to sooth his wounded feelings."

In conclusion, Mr. Thompson writes: "I hope that your athletic world will be able to settle its own disputes without constant reference to what heretofore has been a friendly nation, for even the best of friends grow cold under unfounded insinuations such as those of Harrison and Nickalls."

He declares America hopelessly outclasses other countries in athletics. His purpose in going to Reims is double, to benefit his own health and get a line on what France is doing to prepare for 1916.

HAVANA WANTS CHESS GAMES

Offer of $10,000 Is Made by Mayor of Havana to Pay Expenses of Tournament in Cuba.

Jose R. Capablanca, chess champion of Cuba, who recently received a commission from the Cuban government as chancellor of the Cuban consulate at St. Petersburg, announced on his arrival in New York the other day from Havana that he had been authorized by Mayor Andrade of Havana to invite ten of the leading masters of the world to play in an international tournament at Havana beginning February 1, 1914. The Havana city council has recommended the expenditure of $10,000 for the tournament.

Inasmuch as Capablanca will visit London, Paris and other capitals on the way to St. Petersburg, Mayor Andrade took advantage of the opportunity to clothe the young master with this authority in order to save valuable time. This list of masters includes Rubenstein, Schlechter, Tarrasch, Spielmann, Niemzowitsch, Teichmann, Marshall, Duras, Janowski, Alechine, Bernstein, Maroczy, Atkins and Vidmar. Ten of these players will be given places in the tournament. The sum of $4,200 will be distributed in cash prizes.

PICK MAROON TO WIN

Coaches Look Upon Stagg's Squad as "Star" Outfit.

Critics Declare Chicago Holds Advantage in That Minnesota Comes First on List—Not Afraid of Wisconsin Team.

Chicago has been made the center of the western football stage again this season, and from the manner in which the schedules have been "framed" it would appear as if coaches recognized a year ago that the Maroons would be the team to beat this season. No better proof of this could be given than the fact that Minnesota and Wisconsin, which for the last two years have been the principal contenders for the bunting, have arranged their 1913 meeting for as early as November 1, writes Lambert G. Sullivan in the Chicago News.

That Stagg has a hard row to hoe is shown by the fact that his men will get little if any training between the Minnesota contest at Minenapolis and the Wisconsin struggle at Chicago. It is extremely fortunate for the Midwayites, however, that Minnesota comes first on the list, for Stagg's pupils will be in far better condition for the Gophers than they will be the following week for Wisconsin. It is even possible Stagg will have to depend upon substitutes for the Badgers, for the Minnesota contest is sure to be a grueling affair.

Minnesota is regarded as the strongest eleven against which the Maroons are to be pitted this year. Coach Williams has a wealth of new material besides nearly all of last year's squad, and the astonishing case with which the "Giants of the North" trimmed South Dakota last week demonstrated the men are quick to learn as well as possessing the weight and strength requirements for the game. With Shevlin helping "Doc" again this year, the Maroon wings will have to be particularly strong to withstand Minnesota's onslaughts.

Wisconsin does not inspire the fear among adherents of the Maroon which might be expected from the championship squad of the previous season. This is accounted for by the fact that "Germany" Schultz, who last season aided Bill Juneau in the coaching deparment, has gone back to his alma mater, Michigan, and is assisting Fielding Yost in the same department. The loss of "Germany" is the severest blow which has befallen the Cardinal, not even excepting that of Eddie Gillette, last year's sensational quarter back.

Schultz' coaching last year generally was credited with the rout of the Maroons. Although the former Michigan star had only men at his disposal who had been on previous Wisconsin teams, he did more with them than his predecessors had done. He brought their work to a degree of perfection which only Michigan teams are capable of showing, and it was the forwards even more than the star backs who brought the bunting to Madison last season.

Both Minnesota and Wisconsin have the big edge on the Maroons in that they are able to give undivided attention to one game. The Gophers have nothing to fear from Illinois, whom they meet the final week of the year, and it will be possible for them to put all their efforts against the Maroons. Chicago, on the other hand, will be required to save a great deal of its strength for Wisconsin, which, although not considered to be as tough a proposition as Minnesota, nevertheless is a team against which it is imperative that the men must be at their best.

Wisconsin precedes the Maroon contest with an open date, and has two full weeks of practice following the Ohio State match, which has been arranged for November 8. This should put Juneau's men in rare form for the Maroon battle and make the concluding struggle at Marshall field one of the best in years.

One of the things which are encouraging the Maroons in regard to the Badger game is the conviction shared by last season's veterans that the 1912 Minnesota team was stronger than the 1912 Badger outfit. Although the Maroons were trimmed most decisively by Wisconsin and in turn defeated Minnesota, it is impossible to convince one of them that Minnesota was not the better team. They base their failure against Wisconsin on not being sufficiently prepared. It is known that the Maroons were not familiar with signals and looked like a team which was decidedly overtrained—and the players acknowledge this was the case.

With the two big games coming at the conclusion of the season this year, however, Stagg's pupils are confident the result will be different. With signals thoroughly learned and men trained to the edge, they are certain they will trail the colors of both Minnesota and Wisconsin in the dust.

Mike Murphy is being missed at Penn. Doctor Hancock, a former football and crew man, is on the field daily with his satchel full of tools helping patch up bruises and cuts. TORTURING TWINGES

Much so-called rheumatism is caused by weakened kidneys. When the kidneys fail to clear the blood of uric acid, the acid forms into crystals like bits of broken glass in the muscles, joints and on the nerve casings. Torturing pains dart through the affected part whenever it is moved. By curing the kidneys, Doan's Kidney Pills have eased thousands of rheumatic cases, lumbago, sciatica, gravel, neuralgia and urinary disorders.

ALLEGHENY RAPS ROAD LOAN.

Urge Voters of Pennsylvania to Oppose the Measure at the Polls on Nov. 4.

The allied Boards of Trade of Allegheny county, comprising twenty-six units, has added its opposition to that of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce against the proposed $50,000,000 bond issue for roads.

At a recent meeting the allied bodies passed a resolution opposing the passage of the proposed constitutional amendment for roads. It follows:

"Resolved, That although we are in favor of good roads throughout the entire Commonwealth, and realize the importance of such roads in the development of every community, we believe the proposed $50,000,000 state bond issue to be unnecessary and uneconomic; that it will be used for political purposes; and we therefore urge the voters of Allegheny county to oppose the proposed bond issue at the coming election."

The organizations connected with the Allied Boards of Trade of Allegheny county are:

The Pittsburgh, Bloomfield, West End, Lawrenceville, Lincoln District, South Hills, Oakland, Hazlewood, Wilkinsburg, Uptown, Millvale, Central, Larimer, Stanton Heights, Saw Mill Run Valley, Hill Top, Brookline, Sheraden, Perryville Avenue District, Beachview and Dormont Boards of Trade, the Civic Club of Allegheny County, the Allison Park Board of Public Service and the Pittsburgh Civic Commission.

Reasons For Opposition.

Before the resolution was adopted the committee on taxation of the allied boards made a report in which it was set forth that the various organizations are opposed to the amendment:

Because not more than $5,000,000 annually can be well spent on the roads, and this amount can readily be taken from current funds, and as the sinking fund requirements for the $50,000,000 will amount to over $3,000,000 annually.

The enormous interest charged on the bonds, namely, $2,500,000 per year, will require more than double the amount of the principal to be paid to the bondholders during the life of these bonds. In other words, the community will have to pay about $100,000,000 or more in interest, which amount could be saved by making annual appropriations direct for this purpose.

There is no time or date as to when these bonds shall be sold, and they can all be disposed of the next day after the approval of the same by the legislature.

Allegheny has already constructed and paid for 470 miles of improved roads and will receive very little benefit from this bond issue.

It is proposed that all bridges and culverts shall be paid for by the county through which the roads to be improved, and as Pennsylvania is a mountain state this means great expense to the counties.

Cost of Upkeep.

Over 8000 miles of road are included in the schedule of roads to be improved, and as these will cost about $20,000 a mile, making a total of $160,000,000, and in the course of ten or fifteen years it is estimated that the cost of upkeep on these roads will be $15,000,000 per year or more.

The act recently passed by the legislature, which goes into effect Dec. 1, 1913, takes over the control of the township roads from the township supervisors, they becoming the employes of the highway department, and all road taxes will hereafter be paid over to the highway department. If in addition he is permitted to expend this enormous bond issue he will have power, through the distribution of this patronage to control elections for governor, United States senator or any other officer or measure which may be brought before the people.

Inasmuch as the governor appoints the highway commissioner, the entire organization of his department, employing thousands of men in every county of the state, can be used for political purposes by the party in power.

The report also calls attention to the New York bond issue of $50,000,000, much of which went to favored contractors. Now in order to complete the work mapped out in New York another $50,000,000 is to be expended.

When Critics Disagreed

Professor Lounsbury tells a good story which seems to show that in the matter of poetry critics hold diverse opinions and that one man's opinion is as good as another's. According to the professor, Aubrey De Vere, the Irish poet, collected on the same day the opinion of three of his brother poets on the poetical standing of Burns.

One of these poets, who was Tennyson, said Burns' songs were perfect, but that one had to forget his serious pieces to enjoy them. The second, who was Wordsworth, said that Burns' "serious efforts" showed great genius, but that his foolish little amatory poems were worthy only of oblivion. The third was Sir Henry Taylor, who said that he found Burns' songs and his serious poems alike—tedious and disagreeable.

The Youth's Companion In 1914.

Seven college presidents and a number of college instructors, including ex-President Taft, will contribute to The Youth's Companion during 1914.

Then there is Gene Stratton Porter, whose stories of Indiana woods and swamps have made her famous, and Kate Douglas Wiggin, who never wrote a dull line in her life, and Mrs. Burton Harrison, who remembers when conversation was really an art as practised in Washington and in the manor houses of Virginia. And this is just a beginning of the list.

If you know The Companion, you have a pretty clear idea of what is in store for next year's readers. If you do not know, ask us to send you sample copies—for instance, those containing the opening chapters of Arthur Stanwood Pier's fine serial—"His father's Son." Full announcement for 1914 will be sent with the sample copies.

For the year's subscription of $2.00 there is included The Companion Practical Home Calendar for 1914, and all the issues of the paper for the remaining weeks of 1913, dating from the time the subscription is received.
